

---

Wanuskewin's baby bison

---

A baby bison was born on Wanuskewin lands.

She was born on Earth Day.

She is the first baby bison to be born at Wanuskewin in over 150 years.

Bison are special

Bison are important to the local Indigenous peoples. The elders wanted to bring the bison back to their land. They wanted their children to learn about them.

The bison came back

Last year, eleven bison were brought from southern Saskatchewan and North Dakota to Wanuskewin Heritage Park.

The community hopes that the herd will have over 50 bison in the future.

Three more baby bison were born in May.

Adapted from Saskatoon StarPhoenix,
CBC News • Photos: Pixabay, Flickr/Kevin
M. Klerks

This is a baby bison.

Bison are important to the local Indigenous peoples. These bison statues are outside Wanuskewin Heritage Park.