

---

$1,000 for families

---

There is a new benefit for people living in BC. Some families, single parents and individuals are eligible to get money to help them through the pandemic.

The Government of BC is making a one-time payment to help people in British Columbia “who have been hit the hardest” by the pandemic.

Who is eligible?

Families and single parents

- $1,000 for families and individuals with a net income up to $125,000
- Reduced amount for families and single parents with a net income up to $175,000

Individuals

- $500 for individuals who earn less than $62,000 a year
- Reduced amount for individuals who earn up to $87,000

Did you know?

- The amount of payment is based on the net, or after tax, income from your 2019 tax return.
- You must apply to receive the benefit.
- The deadline is June 30.

Adapted from Government of BC and BC NDP • Photo: Flickr/Bank of Canada

---