
Secret climbing tree

There's a big tree in Vancouver.

The tree has many branches.

Some people climb this tree.

Up high, they can see downtown. They can see the mountains, too.

The tree is a giant sequoia.

Giant sequoias are very wide.

They live for hundreds of years.

Where is this tree?

That's a secret!

Only local people know.

They have climbed it for years.

It is near Cambie Street and King Edward Avenue.

Can you find it?

This is the secret climbing tree.

Did you know?

A Sitka spruce on Vancouver Island is the tallest tree in Canada. It is about 96 metres high and 600 years old.

Adapted from CTV News, Submitted by Michelle Lavallee • Photo: Michelle Lavallee